Newton had a very busy life. Every minute was occupied either in thought or in experiment and he even grudged the time he had to spend in sleep or for taking meals, as a result of which he neither slept nor ate properly. A friend once called on him, and learning that Newton was busy, he resolved to wait till he appeared for dinner, which was already on the table. After waiting for a considerable period of time, he began to feel hungry so; he sat down and ate Newton's dinner. When at last the great man appeared, he greeted his friend and sat down to have dinner. On finding the dishes empty, he remarked, without showing any surprise," Oh ! I forgot I had already taken my dinner. How silly I am !

It is well known that great Vidyasagar came of very poor parents. Poverty was the companion of his boyhood and early youth. In those days he had rarely any curry, pulse or milk to take with his rice, and had to be satisfied with only a pinch of salt. He was, however, blessed with an excellent appetite, and so did not miss the things much, but ate a hearty meal of what he had. Indeed he seemed to look upon his scarcity in the light of a discipline, and all through his life, even at the height of his success.

सुख और सुविधा के बीच एक महीन -सी रेखा है, उसे समझना होगा । मेरी दृष्टि में सुख और सुविधा दोनों पर्यायवाची होने के बजाय बैरी हैं । सुख का सुविधा से कोई लेना - देना नहीं है । सुविधा संपन्न हो जाने का अर्थ यह नहीं है कि आदमी सुखी है । सच तो यह है कि सुख को आप भीतर से महसूस करते हैं । जैसे एक अच्छी किताब पढ़ लेने के बाद, एक सार्थक फिल्म या नाटक देख लेने के बाद ।
